

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A catalyst formed of a zirconia carrier carrying ruthenium and a catalyst formed of an inorganic oxide carrier carrying zirconium and ruthenium provide high conversion in autothermal reforming of a variety of hydrocarbons. The catalysts also provide high yield of carbon monoxide in reforming reaction making use of carbon dioxide and exhibit long-term stable characteristics with a small amount of coke deposition.